Riot at Leavenworth Causes the Wounding of Two Men.

RELIGIOUS RESTRICTIONS.

Japan's New Law Places a Damper on Former Customs.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 21.—Japan's new law regulating all faiths and beliefs has gone into effect and much comment has arisen in consequence. A copy of the regulations has been received at the Japanese consulate here. According to it all sects, pagan and christian, are placed under the absolute control of a local governor. Without his permission even a church cannot be built or meetings held. The regulations even go so far as to demand detailed information regarding the pastor.

"Before commencing religious work propagators of a faith must go before the governor with full details. The scheme of faith must be fully explained, church finances accounted for and the personal and religious history of the applicant and members outlined in writing. The order further decrees that all who desire to establish or build a temple, church, preaching or true house for religious purposes must apply for permission furnishing the following particulars:

"Why is such building necessary; the date when the building will be completed; the name of the building; where located and all necessary information relating to the site and structure and structure and also the plan of the edifice; the name of the religion; its method of control and maintenance; when there is a chief preacher his qualifications and the method of his election. If the building is not completed within the term stated by the applicant the permit will be null and void. If preachers to be changed or their number increased, or if any change occurs bearing on any of the tenets or plans or anything connected with the faith, if it is desired to move the building, or if anything is wanted the preachers, or those in charge must go to the governor for permission. Even if a sect is to go out of existence, the governor must likewise have his say about it.

A number of gems are being found in the lake region, and quite a number of diamonds have been discovered. No less than seventeen well identified diamonds, varying in weight from one-half to more than twenty-one carats, have been discovered in the region of the great lakes. The localities in which these diamonds have been found are distributed over an area nearly 600 hundred miles in length and 200 miles in width, with its longer axis trending almost exactly northwest and southeast. Nearly all the diamonds were obtained from the deposits of glacial drift. The colors vary from white to white tinged with green and pure yellow. Several of the stones are remarkably fine gems.—Scientific American.

Victor Hugo.

Victor Hugo wrote in his old age: "I feel in myself the future life. I am rising, I know, toward the sky. The sunshine is over my head. Heaven lights me with the reflection of unknown worlds."

"You say the soul is nothing but the result of bodily powers; why then is my soul the more luminous when my bodily powers begin to fail? Winter is on my head and eternal spring is in my heart."

"The nearer I approach the plainer I hear around n immortal symphonies of the w which unite me. It is marvelous, yet simple. It is a fairy tale, and it is a history. For half a century I have been writing my thoughts in prose, verse, history, philosophy, drama, romance, tradition, satire, ode, song—I have tried all. But I feel that I have not said the thousandth part of what is in me. When I go down to the grave I can say, like so many others: 'I have finished my day's work,' but I cannot say 'I have finished my life.' My day's work will begin the next morning. The tomb is not a blind alley, it is a thoroughfare. It closes in the twilight to open with the dawn. I improve every hour because I love this world as my fatherland. My work is only a beginning. My work is hardly above its foundation. I would be glad to see it mounting and mounting forever. The thirst for the infinite proves infinity."

From the "Jaureguiberry" a balloon was held captive at an elevation of 1,300 feet while the "Carnot" endeavored to locate the balloon from five to twenty-five miles. The experiments proved that the limit of vision under the circumstances was about twenty miles.—Scientific American.

The injunction is a temporary one, made returnable at the October term of the court. When the waiters went on a strike they began a systematic effort to divert trade from the restaurant. Cloudcroft is in the newly organized county of Otero, N. M., one hundred miles north of El Paso, Texas, on the summit of the Sacramento mountains. It is at the terminus of the Alamogordo & Sacramento railroad. Having an altitude of 9000 feet above sea-level, it commands a magnificent view of the surrounding country. On the north, White mountain is covered with snow the greater part of the year, rearing his hoary head 13,000 feet high; on the west the white sands of the Tularosa valley, which constitute the most wonderful formation in New Mexico and presenting an appearance not unlike white billows rolling in from the sea; and on the south and east boundless forests of spruce and pine swaying on the hills and in the valley below, all taken together form a scenery unsurpassed for its magnificence.

The climate of the Sacramentos is simply superb. It is not excelled by that of any other region. The atmosphere is cool and invigorating and absolutely free from impurities.

As evidence of the excellence of the climate of this region of New Mexico, it is only necessary to state that the United States government, after careful investigation of all the country in its vast domain best adapted for a marine sanitarium, selected Fort Stanton.

REBUKED IN COURT.

President of Dreyfus Courtmartial
Jeered for His Partiality.

HE FEELS THE STING.

Jouaust Displays His Hostility to Dreyfus, but the Crowd Makes Him Repent Such a Move—Dreyfus in Better Spirits.

Rennes, Aug. 21.—The third week of the second trial by courtmartial of Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, captain of artillery on the charge of treason, began with an incident at 6:30 o'clock this morning. There was a large attendance at the opening of court in view of the possible reappearance of Maitre Labori, the leading counsel for Dreyfus. Though he is progressing as satisfactorily as possible, his physicians deemed it best for him to remain quiet. When it became known that the distinguished lawyer would not participate in the proceedings a large number of disappointed persons quitted the courtroom, leaving perceptible gaps along the benches.

The court settled down to business quickly and by 9 o'clock five witnesses had appeared at the bar. If this rate is continued it is calculated the court will get through with the 90 odd witnesses by the beginning of September, and probably the verdict will be delivered about Sept. 7. Generals Roget, de Boisdreffe and Billot were present on the witness seats and Colonel Picquart took a place a couple of rows behind them. The colonel sat alone until M. Bertulus, the examining magistrate whose evidence was so favorable to Dreyfus, entered and sat beside Picquart, warmly shaking him by the hand. All of the witnesses were hostile to Dreyfus, but none of the evidence was fresh, but mostly a reiteration of the old statements.

The principal witness against Dreyfus was M. Gribelin, and he made some strong points against the prisoner. When he was cross-questioned by Dreyfus' lawyer he admitted much of his testimony was hearsay and that disclosure destroyed the rest of his testimony.

Dreyfus created a better impression today. He entered the court with a more confident bearing and replied to witnesses in a calm voice without any theatrical gestures and remarks put so lucidly appeared to make an impression on all judges, all of whom are reputed to be bitterly opposing him.

The session wound up with a scene, an account of the extraordinary conduct of Colonel Jouaust, president of the court, who permitted himself to make an unwarrantable display of partiality. M. Bertulus had been confronted with the last witness, Captain Junck, and Gen. Gonze defended the latter, when Col. Picquart rose and asked to be allowed to refute some of Junck's remarks. Col. Jouaust made a gesture of impatience and shouted: "What, again?" An outburst of booing and hissing came from the audience at such display of unfairness from the president. The judges and gendarmes quickly suppressed the noise, but Colonel Jouaust understood well the merited rebuke administered to him, turned red and adjourned court 16 minutes later.

The witnesses in the afternoon developed nothing sensational. They were mostly against Dreyfus, but revealed nothing startling as to the case of treason, but dealt principally with the class of people the prisoner associated with, especially women.

RIOTS IN FRANCE.

Over Three Hundred Persons Wounded in Street Fights Sunday.

Paris, Aug. 21.—Paris was the scene of the most serious disturbances Sunday, recalling some aspects of the commune. In response to an appeal of the journals L'epuise and La Petit Republicaine, groups of anarchists and Socialists gathered about 3 o'clock in the afternoon in the Place de la Republique. The police had taken precautions and there seemed to be no danger of disorders.

Sebastian Faure and Fabrot, well known revolutionary anarchists, were the leaders, standing on the pedestal of the statue which rises in the center of the Place de Republique, addressed the crowd. Among other things he said that the anarchists should be masters of the streets. The police then interfered and dislodged Faure and Fabrot, making three arrests. The crowd at this point dispersed, but a column of demonstrators, headed by Faure and Henri d'Horr, made for the Place de la Nation. The police broke through and a struggle followed. Many were wounded and taken prisoners.

Riots took place at several other points during the evening and night.

The prefecture of police gives the following statistics of Sunday's riots:

Three hundred and eighty persons were injured and 360 were taken to the hospitals. Fifty-nine police agents were wounded, besides Commissaries Gostier and Dolzime. One hundred and fifty persons were arrested, of whom 80 were detained in custody.

Holcomb, Populist, is leading candidate for the supreme bench and the present outlook is that he will receive the nomination. W. J. Bryan is a delegate to the Democratic convention and it is reasonably safe to predict that his wishes will govern the action of that body. This means that fusion will be a go and that the platform will declare for free silver.
